ABSTRACT

A device and method for replacing a touch screen is disclosed. The device includes a heating layer configured to be disposed in close proximity to a monitor having a touch screen adhered to its front surface. The method includes disposing the heating layer so that the touch screen adhered to the font of the heating monitor is in contact with the heating layer, heating the surface of the touch screen, and removing the touch screen from a front surface of the monitor.